Community Policy & Educational Disclaimer

Effective date Upon publication on MCX Control.

1. Purpose of the Community

The Community is for educational discussion, general market awareness, and the exchange of ideas about hypothetical or simulated trading strategies. MCX Control provides no investment advice, research recommendations, brokerage, or real-money order execution.

2. User-generated content

Posts, comments, replies, trading examples, and private messages come from individual members. Authors are responsible for what they share and for following applicable law and platform rules. MCX Control does not endorse or routinely verify member content, and its accuracy is not guaranteed.

3. Educational content requirements

Members may discuss trading concepts, risk management, historical examples, and hypothetical strategies. Clearly label simulations and historical examples. Use fictional prices for hypothetical exercises, or give the date and source for historical price examples. Historical examples must be at least 30 days old. Do not present live or recent security-specific targets or disguise actionable recommendations as education.

4. Prohibited financial content

- Unauthorized investment recommendations, paid signals, and attempts to recruit members into unauthorized paid-tip groups.
- Guaranteed profits, assured returns, and requests to copy specific real-money trades.
- Solicitation of investment funds, deposits, or trading-account management services.
- False claims of SEBI registration or regulatory approval, manipulated profit screenshots, misleading performance claims, and fraudulent promotions.

5. Independent financial decisions

Independently verify information before making any real-money decision. Posts, reactions, Verified badges, and private messages do not establish financial expertise or reliability. To the extent permitted by applicable law, MCX Control is not responsible for losses arising solely from independent financial decisions or reliance on third-party content. Statutory rights and duties continue to apply.

6. Community moderation

MCX Control may investigate reports, remove or restrict content, issue warnings, and suspend accounts. Moderation does not guarantee that every post has been reviewed or that it is accurate.

7. Privacy and respect

Do not share another person's private information, passwords, OTPs, financial credentials, or confidential trading-account information. Public posts are text-only and may not include contact numbers. Harassment, impersonation, discrimination, fraud, spam, and copyright infringement are prohibited.

8. Content reporting

Use the post options menu and select Report post to flag misleading financial claims, suspicious solicitations, harassment, or other violations.

9. Community risk acknowledgement

By publishing or interacting with community content, members acknowledge that it is primarily user-generated and may be incorrect, incomplete, or outdated. All community discussions, strategies, and trading examples are for education and learning only. They do not constitute investment advice or instructions to trade. Real-money decisions are made independently and at the member's own risk, subject to applicable law.

Paper Trading Membership

When you use the MCX Control simulator, you participate as an official MCX Control Paper Trading member of our internal practice program. This membership applies to participation in the simulator and confers no employment, agency, professional accreditation, or regulatory authorization. Restricted testing access requires separate authorization.

Practice orders are simulated using virtual funds. No orders are placed on an exchange. Virtual balances and results have no cash value and cannot be withdrawn or converted to cash. Simulated execution, pricing, fees, liquidity, and results may differ from real trading conditions.
